CURIOUS LAWSUIT.

ublic and Private Practice of Howard Physicians-A Case of Interest to Hundreds of People Who Recovered from Yellow-

Yesterday Esquire Galloway heard a curious case, originating during the yellow-fever epidemic of the present year. It was a suit on the following bill: MEMPHIS, December 8, 1879.

FANCY GOODS! TOYS! TOYS! Mrs. George Carey
To Thos. S. Easton, M.D., Dr.
To amount of account as to Remized bill......$354
From the proof introduced during his trial it appeared that Dr. Easton was a Howard physician during the early portion of the epidemic and received five dollars per day ut according to the contract with the How ards at that time, which was before the pay of physicians was raised to ten dollars per day, the five dollar a day men had a right to retain their private practice. On the seconday of August Mrs. George Carey, wh keeps a grocery store on the corner of Third and Jefferson streets, was taken sick with yellow fever, and the neighbors sent at once for a Howard physician. Dr. Easton being in that district was called in. He duly reported the case to the Howards in his reports as a Howard patient in his district, and for the Howard patient in his district, and for the attendance of such patients he received five dollars per day. He attended her up to the twelfth of August, but his bill of particulars charged her with attendance up to the seventeenth of August; that is the bill for three hundred and fifty-four dollars which he sued Mr. Carey upon before Esquire Galloway. Dr. Easton claimed Mrs. Carey's case as belonging to his private practice, although she had sent for a Howard physician and he had reported her as a Howard case to the Howard association. During the pendency Howard association. During the pendency of the suit, it was discovered that Mrs. Carey was not a femme sole, but a married woman so a new bill, not as large as the first bill was made out, but in the new bill was that the first six dollars for medical atten-tion for one day. After hearing the testi-mony, Esquire Galloway promptly ruled that he would find for the defendant, Mrs. Carey, but the plaintiff took a nonsuit, intending t commence suit before some other magistrate. It was a curious case, wherein the duplicate powers of a Howard physician to select as between the Howard cases and the physician's private practice came to the front one again. We have concluded to make a change in Christmas Tree Ornaments, our business and now offer our entire stock of wall paper and window shades at greatly ust received. Large variety, will sell cheap
